Fr Joe writes. I have my sympathies with the disciples of Jesus who in their timidity took to flight when the Lord was arrested and put on trial for I see some of that timidity in myself. Sometime, though, I overcome that timidity as when a number of years ago I was stopped in Ingram St and told that I was needed at the end of the block where a man had collapsed and was in danger of death. I had been making my way back to the Cathedral from the Rottenrow Maternity which I used to visit each Friday afternoon. A man was on the ground but leaning against the wall of what was then the Sheriff Court and a crowd gathered round him. I made my way through the crowd and on one knee spoke quietly to him: "I am a Catholic priest." He stirred, began to push himself against the wall and muttered as he struggled to his feet: "I don't want a * Catholic priest!" Just then the paramedics arrived and the crowd made way, so I slipped away through the open mouthed onlookers who thought they has witnessed a miracle!

The disciples, too, overcame their timidity after the resurrection and did great things for God.
