Parish Council Meeting. Thursday 18th April at 7 pm

Part 2 of Fr Joe writes (on request).
Easter Wednesday was a day to remember! Leaving Strathcarron there was a large roadway sign for a Spar shop in the village of Lochcarron, but this was off our route and would have meant an extra 6 miles, so we decided that we would press on and hope for something over the next 19 miles. There was nothing but strong winds with drizzle, much walking and a somewhat disregard for the beautiful scenery. At Achnasheen we turned right to head for the station and the centre of the village. We were cold and hungry, the next train a 3 hour wait. A Tesco delivery man stopped for a comfort stop at the station, but he had no food for us, and couldn't give us a lift, but he mentioned the Midge Bite, a roadside café, a hundred yards away, where we could get a cup of tea. We entered the warm café at 3.50. They stopped serving food at 4 pm, closing at 5pm. We had large slices of bread with our soup, baked potatoes with haggis, salad, cheese, coleslaw, followed by flapjacks and coffee. We devoured the lot! The staff were extraordinarily so kind and helpful. They sold us eggs, and gave us slices of bread, butter and drizzle cake away with us, but most of all they told us to stay as long as we wanted and they would work around us. We left so very grateful after 6 to catch the train for two stops down the line and pitched the tent there for the night.
We had porridge as usual for breakfast, had an easy cycle along to Garve to catch the train, as we had planned to do, taking us to Inverness and then the train to Glasgow and Penilee. While Tommy was going home to get ready to travel down to England the next day for a family wedding, it was a bath for me, an early night, a good sleep and being ready to proclaim the gospel about the risen Lord the next morning. In that gospel the Lord was inviting his friends to "Come and have breakfast" on the shores of the lake. This brought to mind the breakfast on the shore of Loch Carron and indeed reminding me of all the other meals that we might say that the Lord has provided for us.
