Fr Vincent writes: Only a week in, but it seems like I've been here for a month or more, having been introduced to so many people, especially all those who serve the Lord with love in helping to build our parish community.
It has been both uplifting and overwhelming to see so many people involved in different aspects of parish life, and to sense the desire to keep moving forward in meeting new challenges and reaching out to all who do not know the peace and joy which Christ offers in navigating the rough seas of life.
We have his message of eternal life—let us not be afraid to share this good news!
A renewed 'thank you' to Fr Joe Boyle for his 11 years of service here and handing on such a vibrant and well-run parish. And thank you to all of you for making me feel so welcome and cared for.
Also, may I thank the people of St Michael's, Dumbarton, with whom I served an eight-year apprenticeship, and who helped mould me into a better priest.
One of the advantages of actually being here is that I no longer have to try to explain to people where Penilee is—not by the sea, on the east coast, nor a Beatles number!
